ARTHUR MELVILLE WARE

1858—1922

FOREWORD

FOR several years Arthur Melville Ware, of Wayne, Pa., had planned to re-edit and bring up to date this "Genealogy of the Descendants of Joseph Ware," but pressure of business had prevented him from giving the time he knew the work would require. It was not until the summer of 1921 that, having so arranged his affairs as to secure more leisure, he began to collect the material to make the genealogy complete. The extent of the new matter compiled by Mr. Ware may be known when it is considered that in the earlier edition only 180 direct descendants were recorded, while the present edition includes the records of over 500.

On New Year's Day, 1922, the revision having been completed to his satisfaction, Mr. Ware wrote the "Preface to the Second Edition," which appears in this volume, and a few days afterward handed the manuscript to the printer. Before the book could be put into type Mr. Ware died suddenly, on March 20, 1922, at Flemington, N. J., where he was visiting his daughter, Mrs. A. S. Case. He did not have the satisfaction of seeing even the proof sheets of the book to which he had given so much of his time, and in the publication and distribution of which he had anticipated so much pleasure.

As it goes out to the "Descendants of Joseph Ware," for whom it is intended, we feel that the book, aside from its intrinsic interest to these persons, will also appeal to them as a memorial of him whose kindly thought and peculiar abilities made possible this little volume.

Average ages of the Father, Mother and eleven children at the time of their deaths, 74 years, 10 months.

The only likenesses of Elizabeth and Hannah in existence were profiles obtained from Mr. Dan Ware.

The Old Homestead at Roadstown, N. J., in the lower right-hand corner, was built by Maskell Ware, where his children were born and raised. The high-back, rush-bottom chair was made by Maskell Ware.

Three of this set of chairs made in 1790 are still in use and in possession of the families of Dan and Richard Ware, and are in perfect condition at this date, January, 1922.

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION

IT has been more than thirteen years since the writer began the difficult task of compiling these records—difficult because in most cases such family records as may have been kept were lost beyond recovery. In this connection it may be said that it is inexplicable that none of the grandsons of Elnathan Ware have preserved any record of his birth and death, and inquiries and searches in every direction have been utterly in vain. The old books at Trenton contain no will of his making, and the only thing to reward a long search there was the curious document filed just before his marriage, which appears in its proper place in the following pages. It is, perhaps, scarcely necessary to say that the greatest care has been exercised in this work. In doubtful cases, wherever possible, the original sources of information were visited and carefully examined—Books of Wills, of Marriage Licenses, of Executors and Administrators, of Guardians, and of Court Records. The records of the Friends at Salem—now more than two hundred years old—with various time-stained papers in the keeping of Thomas Shourds, have been very helpful; indeed, it may be said that but for the old books of the Friends, the early history of the Ware family in West New Jersey would be much like the tale of the Three Men of Gotham.

Thanks are due to Thomas Shourds for valuable suggestions and help received at different times, and it is due to him to say that some portions of this record could not have been written but for his own previous researches into the records of some branches of the family. Various friends and relatives have sent their mites in the shape of fragmentary records, all of which have been factors in producing the result.

This history would have been incomplete without some special account of Maskell Ware—born 1766—a man of stern integrity and of unusual strength of character. After earnest solicitation, a paper was prepared by and appears in these pages, as the contribution of Dan Ware, Woodstown, N. J.

It has been generally supposed that the Wares of Camden were of the same family as those of Salem, Cumberland and Cape May, but examination does not show this to be the case. A short account of that branch is given, and the defective record, so characteristic of the Ware tribes, indicate that they are neither as proud of their ancestry nor as careful of their family history as were certain more ancient tribes whose fathers bore some of the same names.

To those of the family who are interested in its history, the compiler commends this work. If it is unsatisfactory, be sparing of criticism—it was a “making of bricks without straw”—a compassing of what was called the “impossible.” There was much groping in the dark; much threading of labyrinths without clues, and the wonder is not that the work was done imperfectly, but that it was done at all.

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

It has been thirty years since the first edition of this book has been published, and during the past year we have been gathering statistics from every branch of the family known to us. With this assistance, received from every section of the country, we are glad to be able to bring the records of so many of our family down to the present day. The first edition recorded 180 direct descendants. We now give records for over 500. Ten generations are represented.

The original drawing from which the frontispiece was produced is in the writer's possession. It is 14 x 20 inches and was made by the celebrated portrait artist, Aug. Tholey, of Philadelphia. The photographs were collected and arranged by I. D. Ware. At the same time, Gutekunst, the photographer, produced 100 photogravure copies from the original, full size, and they are now in the possession of members of the family, and, as no surplus copies are to be had, each year they become more valuable to preserve.

In September, 1858, I. D. Ware, the father of the writer, had a home gathering of the Maskell Ware family at the old homestead in Roadstown, at which about three hundred relatives, neighbors and State dignitaries helped to make it a great community event.

The personal interest to me was the fact that I was the youngest present (six weeks old) and sat in the lap of the oldest one present, my great-grandmother Ware, who was eighty-three years old. She died the following year. I still possess the little cap I wore on that occasion. It was made by hand from a silk skirt that was part of my mother's wedding outfit.

That reminds me. The old homestead at Roadstown is not in the family now, but why not some year, soon, have another gathering?

It would be fine to get together and see “who's who” in the family we are all proud to be part of. It is due the younger generations.

Descendants of Joseph Ware

IMMIGRANT, 1675

On the fifth day of October, 1675, a goodly company from England—principally members of the Society of Friends—disembarked from the ship "Griffith," which had brought them from their native land, with its intolerance and persecutions, to find a home in West New Jersey. The master spirit of the enterprise, and the owner of the lands included in what are now known as Salem and Cumberland Counties, was John Fenwick, from whom the Colony received its name. The landing place, being considered by Fenwick a good location for a town, was called by him New Salem.

Among those who came with Fenwick, was Joseph Ware, of Monmouthshire, Wales. Thomas Shourds, in his history and genealogy of this Colony, says that Joseph came as a "servant" to Edward Wade, but, as Smith in his history of New Jersey says that the daughters of Fenwick, Elizabeth and Anne, married two of his "servants," Samuel Hedge and John Adams, it would seem that the servants, so-called, were simply pioneers who worked for hire, and occupied a much higher social position than those who are called servants in this day.

Be that as it may, Joseph soon became a man of importance in the Colony, and his name appears a number of times in the Court Records as a member of, and sometimes the foreman of, the Grand Jury. Within a few years he had purchased of Anthony Page 250 acres of land, and of Edward Wade, 250 acres more. These lands are situated in Lower Alloways Creek, and a house built thereon by Joseph's son, Joseph the second, in 1730, is now the residence of Thomas Shourds, whose mother was a daughter of Jacob Ware, great-grandson of Joseph the immigrant. A facsimile of a receipt for consideration money, shown on page opposite, is worth noting.

On May 30, 1683, Joseph was married to Martha Becket, daughter of John Becket, of Essex, near Kingston, on Thames.

It is noteworthy that in the will no mention is made of the second son, John. This is probably due to the fact that early in life John became a follower of George Keith, known as the Quaker Baptist, and left the religious denomination of his father to join the new sect.

WILL of JOHN WARE of Cohansie, in County of Salem and in the Province of New Jersey.

In the name of God, Amen. I, John Ware, of Cohansie in the County of Salem & in the Province of New Jersey, Yeoman, being sick and weak in body, but of sound & perfect mind, memory & understanding (blessed be God) do make & declare my last Will and Testament in manner and fform following (that is to say).

First and Principally, I commend my soul into the hands of Almighty God who gave it & my body to be buryed decently at the discretion of my executors hereafter named, hoping for a joyful resurrection thro' the alone merits of my ascended Lord & Savior Jesus Christ. And touching such worldly estate as it hath pleased the Lord to bless me with, I give, demise & bequeath in manner and fform as follows:

Imprimis. I give, devise and bequeath to my loving wife Bathsheba, all & singular my plantation, lands, buildings &c. with the appurtenances situate & being in Cohansie above s'd in the County of Salem to be by her held, used, & enjoyed until my son John Ware shall arrive at the age of Twenty-one years. Then I give the same to my son John Ware his heirs & assigns forever, except what is hereafter mentioned.

Item. In case my said wife Bathsheba should continue my widow then I give unto her an equal third part of all and singular my Plantation, Land, Buildings, &c. to be by her held used & enjoyed by her during the time of her widowhood.

Item. In case the said Bathsheba should think fit to marry, then I give and bequeath to her the use of half the house above & below, also the use of ten acres of land & privilege for keeping six head of cattle, either horses or neat kind.

Item. I give and bequeath to my said wife Bathsheba an equal third of my moveable estate to her the said Bathsheba her heirs & assigns forever.

Item. I give & bequeath the other two-thirds to the rest of my children, (viz.) Hannah, Roda, Elnathan, Mary & Abigail Ware, equally, to be divided between them all and in case my son John should lose or be deprived of the said Plantation, my will & desire is that he should have an equal share of my moveable estate among my other children.

Item. I give & bequeath to my son Elnathan Ware 25 acres of that land with the appurtenances which I purchased of Abiel Carle, Jun., to him, his heirs & assigns forever, and it is my will & desire that my son John above s'd pay or cause to be paid to the said Elnathan Ten pounds current lawful money of America at the age of 21.

Item. I give & bequeath to my son Elnathan all that eleven acres of Marsh which I purchased of Isaac Davis adjoining to John Bacon to him and his heirs & assigns forever.

Item. I give & bequeath the residue & remainder of that land which I purchased of Abiel Carle above said to my son John his heirs and assigns forever.

Item. I give all and singular the lands belonging to me or that I am any ways interested in or entitled to with all their appurtenances on Long Island in case the same be ever recovered unto my children, viz. John, Hannah & Roda Ware, to be equally divided between them.

Item. It is my will and desire that in case my wife should marry that then the two-thirds of my moveable estate should be taken out of her hands and put out at the discretion of my executors hereafter named for the use, benefit and advantage of my abovesaid children to whom it is bequeathed already, and to be paid to them as they come of age.

Item. I will and desire my sons John & Elnathan be bound out to trades at the discretion of my executors & I do hereby nominate, constitute & appoint my loving wife Bathsheba together with my trusty & faithful friend Abraham Reeves, Blacksmith of Cohansie, executrix and executor to this my last will & testament & revoking all former wills grants gifts or bequests whatsoever, do acknowledge this to be my last will & testament and no other & in witness hereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 1st day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred & thirty-four.

ELNATHAN,

It is singular that none of the grandsons have preserved any record of the birth and death of Elnathan, the only one of all the family bearing that name. It is probable that the early records of the first Greenwich Presbyterian Church, which were destroyed by fire, might have thrown some light upon the subject. After the mention in his father's will, the only record found of him after years of searching, was on the bond which he gave to the State when he obtained "License of Marriage," 1760, to "Mercy Moore."

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS.

That We, Elnathan Ware, of Greenwich, in the County of Cumberland & Province of New Jersey, and Enoch Moore, of Greenwich, in the County of Cumberland & Province aforesaid, are holden, and to stand justly indebted unto his Excellency Francis Bernard, Esqr., Capt., General Governour & Commander in Chief in & over his Majdsty's prov' of New Jersey &c. in the sum of Five Hundred Pounds of Current Lawful Money of New Jersey; to be paid to his said Excellency Francis Bernard Esqr. his successors or assigns, for the which Payment, well and truly to be made and done, we do bind ours selves and each of us, Our Heirs, Executors and Administrators, and every of them Jointly & Severally & firmly by these Presents. Sealed with ours Seals and Dated this Thirtieth Day of Aprill, Anno Domini One Thousand Seven Hundred and Sixty.

THE CONDITION OF THIS OBLIGATION IS SUCH, That whereas the above bounden Elnathan Ware hath obtained Licence of Marriage for him the sd. Elnathan Ware of Greenwich &c. of the one Party, and for Marcy Moore of the other Party:

Now if it shall not hereafter appear, that they the said Elnathan Ware and Marcy Moore have any lawful Let Impediment, of Precontract, Affinity or Consanguinity, to hinder their being joined in the Holy Band of Matrimony, and afterwards their living together as Man and Wife; then this obligation to be void, or else to stand and remain in full Force and Virtue.

Sealed and delivered in the Presence of us }

COPY OF THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF MASKELL WARE, who died February 13, 1846, which is a remarkable document, showing unusual confidence of father and mother in an entire family of ten children.

I, Maskell Ware, of the County of Cumberland, and State of New Jersey, being of sound mind and memory, do make this my last Will and Testament, and First, I leave all my just Debts and Charges to be paid by my Executors hereafter mentioned; I leave all my Movable property to be sold, except so much of it as my Wife Hannah, shall want to furnish one room, which I leave to her, with one Cow, and one Hog, her choice. I leave to my Daughter Ruth Applegate, one hundred and fifty dollars. I leave to my son Maskell, one hundred and ten dollars, for money expended on Minor Applegate and family, if not paid to him before that time. I leave my land where I now live, and my barren land in Salem County, to be sold by my Executors hereafter mentioned, at any time when a majority of my sons shall think it will sell to the best advantage at Public or Private Sale, as they may think best, and the money arising from the sales, of my land, movables, after paying my debt, and what is already gave, I leave to be equally divided between my ten children if then living, their heirs, to take their share. And it is my will that my Wife, Hannah, have the Interest of all the moneys arising from the Sales, after paying the debts and what is already gave, and the profits of the place until sold. And it is my Will that my Wife, Hannah, have the Interest of the moneys aforesaid, in this way; the money to be paid to my ten Children, when collected, and every one except Ruth, to give to my wife, Hannah, their obligations for the lawful interest, yearly during her life, of their respected share, and made safe to her satisfaction. I leave to my son William, in addition to his equal share as before mentioned, fifty dollars, for services done to me. And lastly, I do appoint my two oldest sons, Thomas and John, my Executors.

Leaves from the Family Tree

The collating and editing of this book was a hard job. If there are any errors in your immediate branch, please bear with us. We have done the best we know how.

We, who had the final responsibility for completing the new edition, knew very little about the family in general when we took up the work. Our education along this line has been improved greatly, but in our ignorance we have probably blundered in many instances.

In passing sentence, please remember we were working without the aid of the originator of this new edition, Arthur Melville Ware, of Wayne, Pa., who died suddenly before the work of collating had been completed. Also, his sister and chief assistant in this work, Mrs. Clara Lentner McCall, the only other Family Statistician we know of, moved to Coronado, California just about the time we started to ask questions about the family history.

In tracing any particular branch, it is better to use the number in front of each name. For example: No. 564, Charles Edward Capner, child of No. 542, Charles Edward Capner. Trace back small numbers and we find No. 542 is child of No. 421, Pauline Verona Swing. In like manner we find No. 421 to be child of No. 228, Mary Elizabeth Bodine, who in turn is child of No. 102, Hannah Maskell Ware, child of No. 47, William Ware, child of No. 24, Maskell Ware. In this manner all generations can be traced to the original Joseph Ware.

We have not attempted to give addresses in this book, although the original questionnaire requested them. However, should any members of the family desire to communicate with any other members whose present whereabouts are unknown to them, Ware Bros. Company, 1010 Arch Street, Philadelphia, will be glad to furnish the desired information.

We believe the following excerpt from a letter written by Howard F. Ware, president of E. M. & H. F. Ware, Inc., St. Paul, Minnesota, and received just before going to press, will be of interest to the entire family:

"Sunday, March 12th, I was in Greenwich, New Jersey, and for the first time saw the gravestones of Maskell and Hannah Ware, our great-grandparents. I am now able to go to the grave of Maskell Ware, my great-grandfather, John F. Ware, my grandfather, and Edwin M. Ware, my father. The first of the above being in the cemetery of the Presbyterian Church at Greenwich, New Jersey, the other two in the Broad Street Cemetery in Bridgeton, New Jersey."

The descendants of Joseph Ware were well represented in the World War. Prominent on our Honor Roll are the names of Lieut. Loring Woart Batten, Jr., U. S. N., his brother, Richard Ware Batten, and Joseph Moore Tatem.

Lieut. Batten served on the U. S. S. Wyoming during the time that ship was a unit of the Grand Fleet, from November, 1917, to December, 1918.

Richard Ware Batten served in France with the Tenth Engineers from September, 1917, to February, 1919.

Joseph Moore Tatem entered the American Field Service with the French Army in May, 1917, as transport driver. Until November of that year he saw service in the Aisne region and along the famous Chemin-des-Dames. In June, 1918, he obtained his discharge to re-enlist in the U. S. Naval Reserve force. He was in training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station when the Armistice was signed.

It is of interest to note that Joseph Fithian Tatem, father of Joseph Moore Tatem, served as Ensign in the United States Navy during the Spanish-American War and participated in the battles of Santiago and Manzanillo.

There are many others who distinguished themselves as units of Uncle Sam's fighting forces, as nurses, doughboys, gobs, and officers. We would like to make a special mention of each and every one, but lack of sufficient data handicaps us.

Dismissing the military vein, we wish to boast of our representative in the world of music. You all have heard of Helen Ware, the violinist. She is now Mrs. Laszlo Schwartz. Wherever there is a discussion of the merits of Ysaye, Kreisler, Kubelik, Heifetz, Powell, etc. the name of Helen Ware is always prominent. She ranks with the best.

Speaking merely from an academic standpoint, we call attention to the fact that throughout the entire genealogy there does not appear a single set of twins.

Another item: Christmas Week is very popular in the family for weddings. No less than a score of marriages took place during this week, the preference being given to Christmas Eve and Christmas Day, although some of the weddings were solemnized on New Year's Eve.

The mortality rate for the Fourth of July is high. Almost a dozen deaths occurred on Independence Day. During these later years, what with the new laws and so forth, this day is not observed so fatally among the descendants.

We would like to ramble on indefinitely, gossiping and chatting about the various members. But we have to leave a few blank pages in the back of this book so that future records may be kept. Don't overlook these pages. We want to get out a new edition every ten years at least. Put down dates and full names promptly. Your descendants will want better service than our ancestors gave us in this matter of record-keeping.

Take it all in all, it is a pretty good record at that. It's a good family to belong to. And we expect to be able to say the same thing ten years from now when the next record is due to be printed.

The family of Wares living in Camden are not descendants of Joseph Ware, the immigrant, 1675, as has been generally supposed, but of Jacob Ware, born in England in 1674. He was a Captain in the army under Queen Anne, and died about 1775, a little more than a hundred years old. Among his descendants was the Rev. Thomas Ware, formerly well known in Salem and Cumberland Counties, and the dates and facts given in this paragraph are from "The Life of Rev. Thomas Ware," written by himself and published in 1831.

Don't miss reading the will of Joseph Ware. We started to read it merely because it was part of the copy. After passing the preamble we became so interested that it went like a novel, so that after finishing we had to read copy on it all over again, as we had failed to pay attention to making the corrections. According to present-day standards, Joseph Ware was indeed a wealthy man.

The following contribution from Dan Ware, written from his home in Woodstown, N. J., March 3, 1888, should also be read carefully. It is of much interest to members of the family, and, in addition, is an absorbing narrative in itself.

WOODSTOWN, N. J., March 3, 1888.

Maskell Ware was born in Cumberland County, N. J., near Roadstown, December 13, 1766, and died February 13, 1846. He was the oldest son of Elnathan Ware and Mercy Ware, whose maiden name was Moore. He had only a common school education which would compare unfavorably with that of today; consequently he was a lifelong advocate of public education.

He learned the trade of chair-making in Salem, N. J., with John Lanning, a Quaker. I have often heard him speak of the family in terms of the highest praise. He was an apprentice when the old town was taken possession of by the British forces, some time during the Revolutionary struggle, probably 1780 or 1781. I have heard him speak of it frequently.

A family of seven sons and four daughters was the result of his marriage to Hannah Simpkins, of Roadstown, who survived him fourteen years, she living to be eighty-four and he eighty years old.

He was appointed Justice of the Peace about the year 1796 and held the office up to the time of his death without intermission, a period of fifty years. I have often heard it remarked that his judgments were rendered without fear or favor, and rarely if ever reversed.

Both himself and wife were members of the old Presbyterian Church at Greenwich, but it never washed out of him a great many of his Quaker ideas, which he imbibed in old Mr. Lanning's family during his term of apprenticeship. He always cherished a high regard for the Christian graces of the Friends Society of that day.

Notwithstanding he was possessed of a strong and vigorous constitution, death was the result of but three or four days' illness of what today would be called pneumonia or inflammation of the lungs.

I think no lessons were given with greater emphasis by my father than those in reference to the priceless value of time. So impressive were they, that when I wasted it, which was not infrequent, I felt condemned even if I escaped his reproof. He said, "Time lost was forever lost, and could never be regained." I never knew him to use a profane word. He said profane language had not only a demoralizing tendency, but that in all cases it weakened rather than strengthened an assertion, and caused suspicion of falsehood.

Once in crossing with my father a small piece of timber lying directly in the rear of the old homestead we came suddenly upon an old colored woman well known by all the boys as Aunt Sally Williams. She was brandishing in a most fearful manner a fence stake, and had about finished a huge blacksnake. My father cried out, "Don't; don't hurt him, Sall! Don't kill him!" The old woman seemed completely bewildered, and was at least three shades blacker than I had ever before seen her, and as soon as she had breath to speak she said: "Squia, de Scriptor ses de seed of de woman shall bruise de serpent's head, and I killed him, and I'll kill 'em all." "But," said my father, "it is very wrong, Sall, to kill those of your own color. See now what you have done, committed a murder in broad daylight, and I will have to witness against you. Just look at the poor thing, he is almost as black as you are," and as the faintest apology for a smile crept over her ebony face, she said: "Mr. Squia Ware, you just don't believe what you ses, and I knows you don't."

My father often took apples to Bridgeton in the early summer and fall, and sometimes would take me along to drive, and it was his invariable custom to have a bushel or two of bruised ones to throw out to the little boys who, in droves, followed after the wagon. He would throw out half a peck at a time, and laugh to see them tumble over each other picking them up.

He used tobacco both by smoking and chewing, moderately, until his boys commenced picking up his old stumps, and I heard him say that he felt compelled either to give it up or raise a family of smokers and chewers; so, for the sake of his boys, he gave it up and never used it in any shape for over fifty years prior to his death, and the consequence was that none of his sons ever used it.

Five acres of the old homestead was by him planted as an apple orchard, much of the fruit being manufactured into cider, and the old red barrel was generally filled in the fall with apple whisky. We boys had free access to both, but through his example and strong precepts to be careful to take but very little, together with that of our good old mother, who always expressed her disapproval of the practice, we all escaped the fate which so frequently befalls poor human nature.

My father had a most holy horror of the institution of slavery, which was intensified by its interference with his duties as an officer of the law. In my early days (some sixty years ago) many fugitive slaves were kidnapped from towns near Greenwich by men from Maryland hired by their owners. The law empowered a Justice of the Peace, upon sufficient proof, to grant a permit to take them out of the State into captivity. Many such cases came before my father. The agent or "kidnapper," as he was called, always brought with him a hireling ready to swear that the slave owed service to Major, Hugh Frasure, or whoever they pleased to represent, but in every case my father found some legal defect, dismissed the action, and sent the negro scot free, and he would soon be hid in the pines of Cape May or Atlantic until he felt it safe to return home. He would not take the oath of a stranger without proof that he was a man worthy of belief, and that proof they could never offer, as he well knew. The agent was willing to substantiate his good character, but that was objected to, he being an interested party. My father claimed that this was a free State for all classes of people, and nothing but the most positive proof was sufficient to deprive a man of his liberty. Threats of impeachment did not intimidate him. He told them on one occasion, "I would as soon send that boy (pointing to one of us) into slavery as that negro."

A man by the name of Henry Parker, who frequently worked for us, was kidnapped and brought before him. He had a wife and children in Springtown, but the agents did not get him. He was afterward captured and taken before another justice, who granted a permit, and he was taken down into Maryland. In his capture they broke his leg, and when it got so he could hobble about, they chained a heavy iron ball to him to keep him from running away again. One day he got an old file, cut off the chain and tramped through woods, marsh and swamp to the Delaware, crossed over in a boat, came to our house, and to his family in Springtown, and finally became a waiter in a hotel in Philadelphia, where he served many years. He would occasionally walk down to see his family, a distance of about 40 miles. I remember him well. He was a short, thick-set man, good looking and as black as ebony. His wife and family were natives of New Jersey, therefore free. Quite a number of the fugitives brought before my father had been married by him, and some had large families of children.

My father despised cruelty of every form. In those days scores of boys were bound out to farmers. They would get them both from poorhouses and from Philadelphia; also from families unable to provide for them. They were frequently the victims of cruelty of various kinds, want of sufficient food and clothing, and, in numerous cases, of severe beating. If complaint was made to a Justice of the Peace that a boy was abused, it was the duty of such Justice to examine the boy, and if in the opinion of two Justices the boy was the subject of cruelty or abuse, it was their duty to cancel such indenture and place the boy under the care of a more kind and humane master. Many Justices would shirk their duty, but my father never did. I can name half a score that he took away, and have forgotten others. When two Justices could not agree, they would call a third.

I remember one instance particularly, of a man who whipped, with an ox goad, a boy for not being able to drive an unruly pair of steers over a very stumpy field, without striking the stumps. His back was cut into shreds and turned green and black. The associate Justice wanted to return the boy to his master, as the man promised never to whip him again, but my father said never would he consent to it, and asked the associate Justice if he would trust one of his boys with such a brute. Whereupon he consented to cancel the indenture. My father made many enemies among this class of people, but he said he did not want their friendship.

A very amusing incident occurred in Cumberland Court. He was a witness in a case of fraud, the only important witness by which the fraud could be proved, and a young lawyer tried to badger him. A man who was engaged largely in the lumber business, in order to defraud his creditors, assigned his property, or made a bogus sale to someone and left for parts unknown. The night he left he came to see my father, and in conversation said sufficient to show the fraudulent transaction. My father would not keep the secret to cheat the creditors. Consequently he was subpoenaed to testify, and commenced by saying that Mr. came to his house late the night of his departure, and said that he was all packed up and ready to start for the West. My father asked him what disposition he had made of his property. The lawyer remarked sharply, "We don't want to know what you said to him, but what he said to you."

"I asked him what—"

"I tell you that it is what he said to you, and not what you said or asked him, that we want to know about. Tell what Mr. said to you."

"He told me that he had the matter all arranged."

"What else did he tell you?"

"He said that he didn't know it soon enough."

"Did he tell you anything else?"

"Oh, yes, a good deal else."

"Well, what?"

"He said he hadn't time."

"Anything else?"

"He said he was not certain, but thought he should"—and so on. The Court was in a roar of laughter. The attorney asked:

"What did he mean by all this?"

"That was what he said; you can make the most of it."

The lawyer was completely nonplussed. The interview was colloquial and the lawyer, very much to his chagrin, was compelled to let him tell the story in his own way. He had got hold of a Tartar. His evidence was all-important, and proved the fraud conclusively, to the benefit of the honest creditors.

Directly after I came to Woodstown, in 1839, my father came up to see me. I was boarding at the hotel. Politics was at a white heat. It was the Harrison and Van Buren campaign. My father was a Whig and I a Democrat. I introduced him to Esquire Nixon, an old Whig, and he remarked to my father, patting me on the back, that he wished I was as good a man as my father, probably meaning politically. My father answered that he would not be at all satisfied with that. He wanted me to be a very much better man than he was."

"I mean," said Nixon, "that if he would only take you as his pattern."

"A very poor pattern, indeed; I want him to look for a much better one."

I thought the people standing around would split themselves laughing at old Nixon, who was a great flatterer.

During his stay with me a sparring match took place between a couple of fellows, and one of them got mad and was about to commence a fair fight.

My father, putting his hand on him, said, "Hold on!" The man said, "Who the —— are you? I have a right to do as I please, I want you to know."

"That depends on circumstances, my friend. A man has a right to do as he pleases only when he pleases to do right."

The fellow backed down. My father was kindness and generosity personified, and at the same time he was stern and unyielding where principle and propriety were involved.

As an instance, he had filled an order for a load of chairs for a man in Salem, who sent his team down for them late on Saturday afternoon to have them loaded so that he could start back with them early on Sunday morning. Not a bit of it. My father would not let him drive out of the yard with them until Monday morning, saying it was no day to parade merchandise through the country.

And yet he was free to say that he considered it a duty to save from waste, even on Sunday, that which otherwise would be destroyed.

In a political discussion with one of his neighbors, who was an avowed Federalist—my father being a Jeffersonian Democrat—politics were raging high, and they were discussing the old English law requiring a voter to be worth fifty pounds proclamation money. Thomas Jefferson and his party, the Democrats, were opposed to this property qualification. His neighbor no doubt honestly thought that persons having no property had nothing at stake, therefore should not be permitted to vote. In fact, he thought they would be a dangerous element in the political field, and might vote away the rights of property holders without having any interest at stake themselves, etc.

My father answered that they had their living to get, which to them was of as much consequence as all his dirty acres were to him, which would seem to be a clincher.

DAN WARE.
